COOEE! HACKNEY

By Jane Young

STARS came out in force for the opening night of London's most celebrated panto.

EastEnders' Rudolph Walker, Holby City's Robert Powell, comedians Griff Rhys Jones and Josie Lawrence, actor Steven Berkoff, and TV presenter Nick Knowles were among those packing the seats as the curtain went up at Hackney Empire.

Mother Goose – the tenth anniversary panto at the Mare Street theatre – has had rave reviews in the national press. Many of the celebrities had come to support the show's leads, local favourite Clive Rowe in the title role, and Holby City's Sharon D Clarke as good fairy Charity.

The appropriately named Rudolph was even roped into the act at one point, getting huge cheers from the crowd. Speaking after the 4 December performance, the actor who plays Patrick Truman in the BBC soap, said: "I come to the Empire a lot, it is one of the best theatres in London, but this is the first time I've seen the panto. It was fantastic. Sharon and Clive have such amazing voices."

Holby's Robert Powell, famous for his title role in Jesus of Nazareth, added: "It's just the best, Clive always delivers. It's an amazing, amazing pantomime."

Griff Rhys Jones, an Empire director, said the show had something for everyone. Adding: "There's one surprise after another. It's got brilliant choreography, the whole cast is so polished, and it works on all levels."

Hackney resident, Josie Lawrence, added: "The Empire never stops being a local asset, there's more variety here than nearly any other theatre in London."

Message from the Mayor

Thanks to all the Christmas workers

CHRISTMAS should be a time when everyone is able to celebrate and have fun, whether it's meeting up with friends, last-minute shopping for presents, or going to the Hackney Empire and seeing what audiences and critics agree is the best pantomime in London.

But unfortunately for some residents there will still be difficulties or a crisis with which they need help, and so many vital public services must be kept running throughout the holiday period.

I'd like to thank all those staff wherever they may be working, cleaning the streets, the nurses and doctors, the police and fire fighters, and the many others who will be giving up a great deal of their Christmas holiday so that everyone else can enjoy theirs.

I hope you all have a very happy, peaceful and relaxed Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Light relief for shoppers

By
Emma Britton

SHOPPERS and passers-by were treated to some Christmas cheer as the Narrow Way came alive with music, lights and magic.

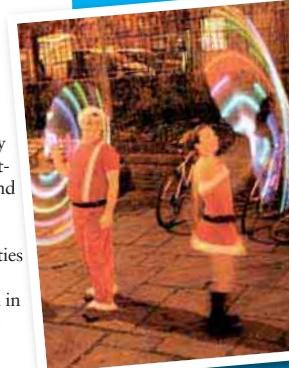

Local classical singers the Mediaeval Baebes entertained the crowds, while there was more music from a steel pan band and drummers at the Winter Lights Christmas Festival at St John-at-Hackney Churchyard in central Hackney on 11 December. Residents and children had the chance to get creative and make lanterns at workshops in St Augustine's Tower with local artist Emily Tracy, and afterwards took part in a parade around St John-at-Hackney Churchyard.

Hula hoop performers Hoop La La – Britain's

Gor Talent semi-finalists, who train at Cirkus Space in Hoxton – got into the festive spirit, donning Santa outfits and performing with fluorescent hoops. And there was more fun with carols, juggling, magic and roasted chestnuts.

The Hackney Christmas Lights Festival is organised by the Council, St John-at-Hackney, and shops and businesses in the Narrow Way. Anyone who missed the festivities can go along on 18 December for the final in a series of three festive events.

Achieving their goals

By
Karyn Michael

FOOTBALL star Theo Walcott was on hand to present Springfield Club for Young People's annual sports awards.

The England and Arsenal star had his arm in a sling after dislocating his shoulder during a training session, but still had a ready smile for winners, posing for photos and signing autographs with his good hand. Former England and Tottenham player Garth Crooks, plus motor racing legend and club president Jackie Stewart, also attended. More than 200 young people and parents supported the 46th annual awards at the Upper Clapton club on 8 December.

As well as football, achievements in rowing, table tennis and athletics were recognised. The club's volunteers were also honoured, and director of football, Wayne Edwards received the club's Graham Hill Award for long service.

Club leader, Vibert Murdock, said: "It was a really positive evening – a lot of organisation goes into it. "It was great that all the young people who have achieved this year were acknowledged – and the volunteers, who are the driving force behind the club."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Don't dine alone this Christmas

THERE'S no need to sit at home on your own on Christmas Day. Free home cooked food, entertainment and good company will be provided at an over 50s dinner held by inShape, in conjunction with Fellows Court and St Mary's estate Tenant and Resident Associations (TRAs).

The event on 25 December is specifically for people who would otherwise be alone.

Places are limited and will be allocated on a first come, first served basis. If you would like to attend, call:

020 7923 9031 or 020 7923 8690.

Share your Christmas dinner with new friends

Bobbing along

AS the temperature drops a call has been issued to residents to help make Hackney's gardens more wildlife and eco-friendly.

For inspiration, the London Wildlife Trust has created mini 'future gardens' around the capital, including at East Reservoir in Stoke Newington.

Elaine Hughes, London Wildlife Trust's expert gardener, said: "From creating wildlife friendly winter hanging baskets with drought resistant plants, to using mulch, or planting a broad leaved tree – there's lots you can pledge to do.

"The fact there are over three million gardens in the capital shows just how important a resource they are. London Wildlife Trust has come up with winter gardening actions that would help create a city more resilient to climate change and better for wildlife. We all have the power to make a huge difference."

Grand designs

By
Emma Britton

TWENTY places in Hackney have been shortlisted for the Council's prestigious design awards.

The judging panel – including architects and experts in development and the built environment – chose the entries for their high quality, contemporary designs and contribution to the surrounding area.

The bi-annual Hackney Design Awards aim to illustrate the Council's commitment to the promotion and celebration of high quality design in the built environment. The four criteria for reaching the shortlist were: high quality design, materials and construction; positive contribution to the surrounding area and public visibility; innovation; and an approach to design, construction, use and management that addresses the structure's social, environmental, and economic impacts.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "The shortlist shows the high quality and diversity of development and architecture across our borough."

Cllr Darren Parker, Hackney's design champion and one of the judges, added: "The awards are a great way to encourage developers and architects to bring forward well designed buildings and public spaces."

Primary school pupils get ready to cut the cake to celebrate Hoxton Hall's 145th birthday

Having a ball at the hall

By
Karyn Michael

HOXTON Hall celebrated the big 145 with a birthday cake and a bit of help from Hackney primary school pupils. Children from Grasmere, N16, St John The Baptist, N1, St Monica's, N1, and Whitmore, N1, were on hand to blow out the candles. They joined guests including backers, staff and local people. All came together to support the organisation and celebrate the landmark building. A film about past projects at the hall was also screened. The Victorian music hall, built in 1863, is now an arts centre, offering theatre, music, art and dance classes for young people. The Hoxton Street venue started life as MacDonald's Music Hall, but lost its licence in 1871. For many years it was used by the Quakers, and also sheltered people during World War Two air raids.

Seasonal safety

By Jennifer Riley

CHRISTMAS is just around the corner. But while we enjoy the party season, what issues do Hackney's authorities face?

Shoreditch Safer Neighbourhoods Inspector, Graham Simpson, explains: "At this time of year, there are more people coming into the borough for a night out, so we step up patrols and make use of additional police units."

"We want everyone to enjoy themselves, but stay safe. For a small minority, being drunk can make you susceptible to traffic accidents or having your belongings stolen."

Police also urged revellers to take care when trying to get home. Inspector Simpson added: "Please plan your journey, neither men or women should put themselves in vulnerable situations. Text 'home' to Cabwise on 60835 and you'll get a local taxi number."

The Council's Licensing Unit is making sure bars comply with the law and keep customers safe. Working with the police,

Make sure your festive night out ends happily by taking a licenced cab home fire brigade and Council's trading standards and noise pollution teams, they keep a check on premises that have had problems in the past.

Police have also launched 'Operation Spotlight', a Christmas anti-burglary campaign targeting known offenders, making arrests in recent raids. Police also advise keeping presents out of sight, using a light timer, and asking neighbours to keep an eye out if you are away over the festive season.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Win 2 for the price of 1 on rent

BEAT the post Christmas blues by winning a month's free rent in January.

Hackney Homes tenants just need to pay December's rent on time to be entered into a draw to win the top prize.

The give-away is part of a drive to encourage tenants to prioritise paying their rent so that they can have a relaxed festive period and not worry about a mountain of bills in the New Year.

Hackney Homes, Chief Executive, Charlotte Graves said: "With a busy festive period coming up, it is important our tenants stay up to date with their rent. That is why we are giving one lucky tenant this opportunity to get their January rent paid." If you would like to speak to someone about your rent, contact your local neighbourhood office. Tenants can pay their rent at the cash payment office in 2 Hillman Street, E8; via Paypoint; direct debit; over the phone on: 020 8356 5050; or online at: www.hackneyhomes.org.uk

2 for the price of 1!

Leisure contract

THE not-for-profit company, Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL), has been recommended to manage Hackney's leisure centres for the next 15 years, following a rigorous procurement process. The Council's partnership with GLL would see significant capital investment across the leisure centres. Both organisations will now work together to finalise the details with formal award of the contract being subject to Cabinet approval early in 2009.

Early Xmas present for over 50s

FREE sporting and social activities are on offer for Hackney's over 50s throughout December.

Residents can take advantage of swimming lessons, gym instruction, short tennis, aerobics, badminton, short mat bowls, games and refreshments at Kings Hall Leisure Centre. Participants will get the chance to improve their fitness levels, try a new activity, make new friends, develop Personal Bests and work towards building sports teams to represent Hackney in the Annual Club Wellness Games, which brings over 50s across London together to enjoy a day of sporting competition.

The Club Wellness day, from 10am to 3pm, every Thursday in December, is part of a drive to develop activity options for older people at the borough's leisure centres. The sessions will continue in the New Year at an affordable charge.

There is no need to book, just turn up at the leisure centre in Lower Clapton Road, E5. For more info, call: 020 8985 2158.

Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund 2008-2010

Funding for provision/activities for young people

Hackney's Youth Opportunity Fund is launching an application process for a new allocation of YOF funding, by contractual agreement for the following youth provisions –

- 1. Young Women
- 2. Integrated disabled youth provision
- 3. Provision in communities and estates lacking youth provisions

The funding complements the Aiming High Agenda of increasing more "things to do and more places to go" and is targeted at Disadvantaged Hard to Reach Young People aged 13-19yrs and up to 24yrs for young people with disabilities or special needs. Its aim is to provide a high quality service, provision and projects for young people in Hackney during term-time, holidays and more importantly Friday and Saturday nights.

Grant Makers are inviting providers from the Voluntary Sector and Community Organisations that have a track record in providing Youth-Led Services to submit an application outline on how they intend to provide services to the target groups.

The deadline for the return of applications is Thursday 18th December 2008 4:30pm.

Laburnum Boat Club

Has been operating from its base on the Regent's Canal in Haggerston for 25 years. It provides young people with canoeing, powerboating and dinghy sailing training, the chance to qualify for awards such as lifeguarding, first aid, expedition leadership, and other activities like rock climbing, narrowboating and orienteering, all-year round.

PAYP & Hackney Grants Programme

Feeling positive?

By
Ruth Garland

MORE than 80 community and voluntary groups in Hackney will get funding next year to run services worth £6.2million.

Nearly two thirds of the cash – £3.7million over the next two years – will be used to fund Positive Activities for Young People (PAYP), a programme which offers the opportunity to try anything from performing arts at Rising Tide and Hoxton Hall to sports and outdoor activities at Laburnum Boat Club and North London Muslim Community Centre.

Twist

The Twist Partnership is based at Holywell Lane, EC2, and works with teenagers at risk of offending, to build leadership and social action skills. This includes working with young people of similar ages in Sierra Leone to improve both their communities, using links with the British Council and others. Funding: PAYP

The rest of the money, just under £2.5million, will be used by the Hackney Grants Programme, run by the Council, which this year received applications from 205 groups. Among the 63 set to win funding are Age Concern Hackney, Arcola Theatre and Hackney City Farm. Community centres and umbrella groups such as Jewish charity Interlink, Hackney Hindu Council, Hackney Cypriot

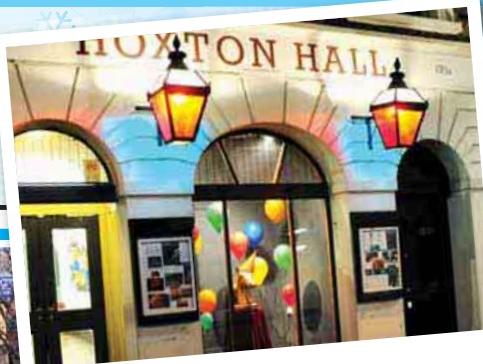

Association and Day-Mer Turkish and Kurdish Community Centre, will also receive funding.

"The response to both programmes, is a testimony to the health of Hackney's community and voluntary sector," said Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet member for Community Services.

Both programmes were over-subscribed by more than three times the available budget. Applicants were scored on how well organisations showed they could deliver good services and value for money for residents. The PAYP selection panel included representatives from the police, schools, Council, community and voluntary sector, and for the first time, two members of Hackney's Youth Parliament.

The Hackney Grants Programme panel included people from all service areas including housing and children's services. Final decisions were due to be made at a Council cabinet meeting on 15 December.

Hoxton Hall

Has been entertaining local people since 1863. Activities for young people include training in theatre, music, art and dance. Funding: PAYP

Hands Inc

Set up in 2001 by two complementary therapists, Hands Inc based in E8, runs art therapy and other programmes for schools like Stoke Newington (above), community groups and Council-run services such as the Youth Offending Team. Funding: PAYP

Rising Tide

Based in Ocean, Mare Street. The project has provided music industry initiatives for young people in Hackney for over ten years. Rising Tide will set up three music hubs to provide support for training and employment opportunities in the creative and cultural industries. Music ambassadors will work with young people and offer music sessions at five youth clubs. Funding: PAYP

Where the money comes from

PAYP is funded through Team Hackney and provides money over two years for projects which promote arts, sport, the outdoors, enterprise, leadership, provision for young offenders and others at risk, and accredited programmes such as the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme. The annual Hackney Grants Programme is a Council funded scheme. This year, grant bids were under six priority areas – cohesive communities; promoting health and well-being; citizenship and pride in Hackney and its environment; advice services; children and young people; and holiday playschemes. THE winners of a novel photographic treasure hunt were announced at the opening of an exhibition in Hackney Museum.

Over 500 photos, taken as part of a borough wide competition this summer and autumn, were entered in Capture Hackney.

Participants were invited to show off their skills and follow clues to iconic Hackney locations, then take creative and original photos of them.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet member for Community Services, said: "This was a wonderful showcase for the borough, a culturally cosmopolitan area with fantastic galleries, theatres, museums and libraries, as well as popular parks and open spaces.

"Congratulations to everyone involved and all those who participated, especially the winners."

A selection of photographs from the competition, organised by the Council's Culture Team, in partnership with Shoot Experience, is now on display at Hackney Museum on Reading Lane. The exhibition is free and runs until 14 February.

There is nothing like a dame

By
Sylvia Arthur

CLIVE Rowe is the consummate pantomime dame. Oh yes he is!

Described by The Guardian as 'one of the greatest', the Lancashire-born thesp has become a Hackney institution.

In the seven years he's been playing here, Clive has cultivated a loyal local following who turn out in force each Christmas to see him camp up his dramatic chops.

Last year, he starred in Dick Whittington; this year Clive takes the lead in the Empire's production of Mother Goose. The show incorporates high-jinks and high drama to charming effect, with Clive the shining star in a stellar cast.

Set in 'Hackneytopia', the script is littered with knowing references to local life, but there's a serious message about community togetherness underlying the comedy. Clive says: "No matter where you go on the planet there are going to be people who spoil it for the rest of us. But I think in Hackney people really want to get on."

When Clive was growing up he wanted to be a chef or fine artist, but wasn't very good at either. Acting came naturally however. Now well respected in the industry, his dedication to panto has brought credibility to the genre. He's appeared in some of the West End's best known shows, including Carousel, and Guys and Dolls, for which he won a coveted Olivier Award – theatre's equivalent of the Oscars.

"To have your peers, people that you respect, who are above you and have been doing it for longer, look at you and say, 'we think what you've done is amazing', is a great accolade," he says.

It's not just the theatrical establishment who have taken Clive to their hearts – Hackney has too. I suggest it must be his Northern charm. "Init!" he jokes in a sketchy east London accent.

"The minute you're received here you're part of the panto and everybody is working towards a fantastic night"

"One of the things I've always felt about theatre, but is even more true with the Empire, is the show starts the minute you walk through the front door, not the minute you sit down in the auditorium and the lights go on. The minute you're received here you're part of the panto and everybody is working towards a fantastic night."

Clockwise from above: Clive Rowe as Mother Goose this year; Priscilla the Goose; Clive as Sarah the Cook in Dick Whittington in 2007; and in less fancy attire

Curriculum Vitae Clive Rowe

- 1964 Born in Oldham, Lancashire
- 1987 Graduated from Guildhall School of Music and Drama
- 1993 First Olivier Award nomination for best supporting performance in a musical for Carousel
- 1997 Won Olivier Award for Best Performance in a Supporting Role for his turn as Nicely Nicely Johnson in the National Theatre revival of Guys and Dolls
- 2002-4 Stars as Duke in the BBC children's drama The Story of Tracey Beaker
- 2005 Stars with Danny Glover and Willem Defoe in the Lars Von Trier film Manderlay
- 2007 Appeared in Doctor Who Christmas special Voyage of the Damned

has appeared in television, film and on radio, but says he feels equally comfortable on the Hackney stage. Panto for him is as much a craft as any other kind of acting. "There's a difficult balance to get where you're keeping everything at panto level because you're playing to the five-year-olds. The trick is finding that core of it where you may be upset about something, but you're not doing Greek tragedy, you're not doing Chekhov, it's panto." And Clive loves it.

"My thing is I have a great time," he says. "I spend all year being told what I can't do on stage and I get five weeks to do what I want. The fact is, I'm having a good time." And so are we.

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I want to wish friends and family a Happy Christmas, but I'm concerned about the amount of waste sending cards in the post will create. What do you suggest?

A: It is estimated that one billion Christmas cards (17 for every woman, man and child) could end up in bins across the UK this year. If we all recycle just one card, this would save 1,570 tonnes of CO<sub>2</sub> equivalent greenhouse gases – the same as taking 500 cars off the road for a year. Cards can be recycled in your green box collection, or in recycling banks on your estate. The Woodland Trust runs a Christmas Card recycling scheme (see below right). Alternatively, you could send electronic Christmas cards via e-mail. The Council has one that can be downloaded from: www.hackney.gov.uk/festive-e-card

Every tree sold by Christmas Forest will help people plant trees in West Africa

Trees for a better life...

By

Karyn Michael

If you've got your heart set on a real Christmas tree this year, why not consider one that can help give someone a better life?

Christmas Forest has pledged that for every tree it sells, one will be planted in Burkina Faso – the world's

“For a family in Africa, a tree could mean housing, food, fuel, medicine, and money”

third poorest country – through Tree Aid. Miranda Spitteler, Chief Executive of Tree Aid, explained: "For a family in Africa, growing a tree could mean housing, food, fuel, medicine, and even money from selling the things growing on it."

The Christmas trees sold are also sustainably sourced.

Remember it's easy to avoid your old tree ending up in landfill after Twelfth Night. Residents can leave trees next to their brown bin on regular collection days. Alternatively, take it to the household waste and recycling centre in Islington or Waltham Forest. They can also be collected the Council's free bulky waste service.

Fun in the bun

PUPILS had fun dressing up as big bits of rubbish, while learning about litter, food and dog waste.

The Year Three children from Benthal Primary School, in Stoke Newington, and Gainsborough primary, in Hackney Wick, were asked how they felt when they saw someone drop rubbish and walk away.

They were urged to think about what litter actually is, as well as whose responsibility it is to pick it up. Youngsters also learnt about the origins of litter, how packaging can become litter, and what a big problem dog waste is because it carries germs.

During workshops at both schools, organised by ecoACTIVE, the children were shocked to hear that dogs in the UK produce 900 tonnes of waste every day – the equivalent to 900 small cars. They also came up with ideas to make sure dog owners clean up after their pets.

Not going to waste

THE Woodland Trust has teamed up with Recycle Now once again to launch their annual Christmas card recycling scheme. Last year, 78,000 cards were collected thanks to the scheme which diverted 1,461 tonnes of card from landfill. The money raised by the scheme pays for thousands of trees to be planted in the UK each year. During January, collection bins will be placed in Tesco in Morning Lane and Marks and Spencer in Mare Street.

Double your treat for dinner

By Lara Edgar

AN organisation that provides a wealth of tips on how to use up your leftovers brought its roadshow to Stoke Newington Farmers' Market.

The Love Food, Hate

Waste stall included a food wheel to help children and parents make the most of specific types of food. The visit, part of last month's European Week of Waste Reduction, saw 35 people make a pledge to reduce the amount of food they throw away.

With Christmas fast approaching, many people will find themselves with a glut of leftover goodies. So if you can't face a round of turkey sandwiches, Love Food, Hate Waste has a special festive leftovers section on its website.

Delightful possibilities include Christmas pudding strudel, curried Christmas vegetables, and turkey, mango and lime salad.

There are also tips on cupboard and freezer essentials, as well as portion sizes, use by and best before dates.

If something really can't be eaten, consider whether it might provide a winter feast for the birds in your garden, or use it in your compost bin. Residents who live in street level properties could also add their food waste to their blue bin.

Energetic poetic performers

Performance poet, Joelle Taylor, helps pupils with their delivery as it's caught on camera

All stories by
Sylvia Arthur

STUDENTS from Stoke Newington School took part in a unique initiative to give young people the chance to have their say.

The SLAMBassadors project works with spoken word artists to give secondary school pupils in London and Liverpool the confidence to express themselves and deliver powerful and captivating performances.

Poet Joelle Taylor visited the school in November to coach youngsters on the art of slam, a competitive combination of performance poetry, spoken word and rap.

The end result was filmed for entry into a national competition.

The SLAMBassadors project, run by the Poetry

Society, is the UK's first online slam contest.

Films will be published online and judged by professional poets who will select 12 winners from London and 12 from Liverpool to perform their work at a regional semi-final.

Eight overall winners will have their work mentored and developed into a 10 minute set to be presented at a major showcase event in April 2009.

Recognition for reading pioneers

THE Learning Trust has been recognised for its pioneering work in improving the education of Hackney's children.

Together with global law firm Linklaters, the Trust was runner up in the Guardian's Public Service Awards 2008 in the Citizenship and Volunteering category – which recognises schemes that promote good citizenship by employees.

In 2007, Linklaters, through their Community Investment Strategy, launched the Hackney Schools Programme – a volunteering initiative connecting the firm and every primary and secondary school in the borough.

The ambitious programme, the first of its kind, was designed to develop young people's employability by raising their confidence and aspirations.

Linklaters staff volunteer to work at all 76 schools in Hackney, via The Learning Trust and Inspire, the education business partnership.

A number of successful activities have been run since the partnership began including the Linklaters reading and writing challenge and debating challenge – part of the wider Words Unite campaign.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet member for Children's Services, said: "This is well deserved recognition for all the hard work and innovation that the Learning Trust and Linklaters partnership has achieved."

"I hope that the partnership continues to benefit local children for a long time to come."

The art of selling your skills

BUDDING art and design stars from Hackney got the chance to follow in the footsteps of Damien Hirst, Stella McCartney and Sir Terence Conran, thanks to an innovative scheme.

University of the Arts London, which includes Cordwainers College in Hackney, and Tate Britain joined forces to offer expert advice on how to get into university to 20 aspiring artists and designers from Brooke House Sixth Form College, Our Lady's Convent High School and Hackney Community College.

Portfolio Advice Day on 3 December saw 40 experts, from colleges across southern England, provide insights and tips on how to improve portfolios ahead of university interviews. Held among world famous Turner paintings at Tate Britain, the day featured advice on how to apply for university places, interview skills workshops with professional actors, and the chance to meet art and design student ambassadors and get the lowdown on student life. Jackie McManus, the university's

Head of Widening Participation, said: "We are not prepared to stand-by while generations of talented young people are denied the opportunities that are open to others because of their backgrounds."

"Who knows? Perhaps one of the students who attend will be the next big thing in art and design."

Choose and Move

Mother Goose is on the loose at Hackney Empire until 10 January 2009 – don't miss out

By Kate Gibney

THE last time my sister, mum and I saw a pantomime was some time in the early 1990s. Now with a collective age of more than 100, would Mother Goose live up to our golden memories? All the traditional trimmings are there. 'Ahs' for the poor widow

Mother Goose (Clive Rowe) – so poor she can't even pay attention; energetic hisses and boos for villain Vanity (writer and director Susie McKenna) and her two hapless stooges; sweeties flying into the audience, and ample opportunity to bawl 'look behind you'. Given the subject matter – the folly of a newly-rich, formerly poverty-stricken widow, whose extravagance runs to the purchase of a vast castle and a gold frock that would leave Dubai bereft of stock – the script resists making reference to the current economic gloom. Instead the cast concentrate on returning the land of Hackneytopia to peace and happiness with genuine enthusiasm. If Rowe's fit of silent giggles during a romantic encounter, which led to one of his many spectacular head-dresses becoming dislodged, wasn't real it certainly convinced me.

The back story of a sweet princess in love with Mother Goose's slightly slow son (Kat B) keeps everything ticking over nicely, and the audience is on their feet at the curtain. So if you love a good old-fashioned panto, hurry up and book a seat. And if you think it's all a bit lowbrow, my mum is a doctor of English literature and loved it. So get going.

and support your local traders

Ridley Road Market is East London's legendary market, situated opposite Dalston Kingsland Station.

You'll find a huge selection of fresh fruit and vegetables, perfect for British, Asian, African, Caribbean and Mediterranean cooking.

As well as stocking pretty much every piece of fruit and veg imaginable, it's really good value.

It's not only a food market, there's also a wide range of stalls selling items including clothes, handbags and jewellery.

Other places which stock a wide mix of goods are Well Street, Hoxton Street and Kingsland Waste markets.

Between London Fields and Regent's Canal, Broadway Market is lined with retailers, galleries, bars and restaurants. The Saturday market sells fantastic organic cakes, fruit and veg, cheese, bread, meat and more.

The food is excellent quality and there's always a great atmosphere.

Hackney's independent shops offer a wide range of possibilities for that special gift.

Advice on buying gifts:

Shop savvy, meaning shop around and find the best value deals. However don't compromise on quality. Especially when it comes to buying children's gifts, make sure they always carry the CE trade mark and beware of fakes – they will be poor quality.

Victoria Park Village offers designer boutiques, specialist interior shops, cafes, pottery and gift shops, florists, hair and beauty salons, pubs, bars and restaurants.

Money for moguls

By

TWO groups of young people walked away from a Dragon's Den-style contest with £1,500 to boost their fledgling companies.

The nine finalists in the Mini Moguls competition at Ocean in Mare Street were chosen from a flood of entries. It was filmed and hosted by the Youth Skills Network (YSN), which trains young people who are keen to pursue a media career.

Over 350 guests watched the action live on a big screen. One-by-one the teams were summoned to the Chamber Of Change, where the judges decided which team should leave with the top prize.

In the end, the money was split between Glass Pebbles, who produce hand-made glass jewellery; and It's Upshot, a clothing line that aims to bring out people's personalities.

Runners-up, Freedom Bags, a social enterprise that customises, promotes and sells recycled bags made by ex-prostitutes in India – won six months free telephone coaching.

YSN founder Andy Fraser said: "I would like to say how proud I am of all YSN students who took part; they performed their duties in a diligent and professional manner.

"I would also like to say a special thanks to the contestants and all the guests for coming to the event to support these brave and bold entrepreneurs."

The contest on 20 November was funded by the Government's Youth Opportunity Fund and the Youth Capital Fund.

Interview

Mentoring to make a real difference

Interview by Rhasan Brunner

ReachOut! is an organisation which helps young children develop their abilities in Hackney and across the UK.

It was started in Manchester in 1994 by a group of students, originally as a homework club, but it gradually expanded. The aim of the mentors is to become positive role models and to help children gain life experience, as well as a sense of confidence. ReachOut! volunteers Jacey, Holly and Fatima told us what they do.

Fatima: Well, I've been volunteering with ReachOut! since October and

I've been working with girls at a primary school in Tower Hamlets.

Holly: For the project I had we were working with young girls at Shackwell primary in Dalston. Do you think you're making a difference?

Fatima: I'd like to think so. It's been great working with the primary school pupils for a few months. I hope next year I'll go back.

Holly: I think I am making a difference at ReachOut! We've helped children, that's how we made a difference.

Jacey: I think I am the kind of person that wants to do the right thing. I like to teach children that some things come at a high price.

Do you take part in other projects?

Fatima: I also volunteer with Kickass another volunteering organisation and I've been studying coaching techniques.

Do you enjoy working at ReachOut?

Holly: I do enjoy working here. I wanted a scheme like ReachOut! and now there is. So now we can help younger children.

Jacey: I like working with young children. I play games with them, like basketball and hockey. I also help in their personal development.

Some of the midwives and 'bump buddies' celebrate the success of Team Hackney's Reducing Infant Mortality Programme

Brilliant buddies

All stories by
Siobhan Silbert

A SCHEME to help expectant or new mums care for their babies has received national recognition with a Health Service Journal award.

The Reducing Infant Mortality Programme was set up to combat Hackney's high infant mortality rate, especially among the Black African and Caribbean communities.

The two-year, £2.2million programme, commissioned by Team Hackney won the reducing health inequalities award and was praised by judges for its 'rigorous assessment, combined with real community engagement'.

It has resulted in an increase in breastfeeding, earlier booking and better attendance at antenatal classes, fewer emergency admissions for new babies, and less women referring themselves to labour wards too soon.

The programme has a team of trained local volunteers known as 'bump buddies' and 'birth buddies' who advise women through pregnancy and support them during labour.

Those identified as being most at risk are supported by two midwives, based at two children's centres and the Sanctuary Practice, a GP surgery that works with vulnerable groups.

The programme also includes nutritional advice, cooking courses, and a maternity helpline staffed by midwives. It is led by Jane Walker, a consultant midwife at Homerton hospital, who co-ordinates services by the hospital, the CHPCT, Shoreditch Trust and City University.

Pauline Brown, Director

"We are delighted at the success of this innovative work"

of Nursing at Homerton, said: "We are delighted at the success of this innovative work and we thank everyone who has worked on the programme in any capacity. It is clear that partnership working is very effective and we look forward to taking the work forward into the future."

Look out below, baby

A great leap for maternity helpline co-ordinator Alison Russell

HOMERTON hospital's maternity helpline co-ordinator Alison Russell took a leap of faith when she took part in a charity skydive to raise money for her department.

Alison did the tandem jump with experienced skydiver Mike Browne and raised over £200 for the helpline which has been helping pregnant women across the borough since 2006.

Alison said of the experience: "It took half an hour for me to train for the jump, but I felt I was in the air for half a day."

"One moment I was safely in an aircraft, the next I was plunging hundreds of feet above the Northants countryside.

"I was back at my desk at Homerton by lunchtime with a daft grin on my face that I couldn't get rid of for at least three days."

Take power at mental health site

A NO-NONSENSE website for mental health information has been launched thanks to funding by the East London NHS Foundation Trust.

Florid is billed as the first site to be developed by service users, for service users, providing easy to understand advice and the chance to share experiences. Co-ordinator, Beth Ford, said: "Florid is a place where service users can take back the power in regards to the information they want. What is really exciting is that it allows people to talk and share information freely. It will get better as people become involved and advise us on what they want to see."

The site has a directory of cross-sector mental health services; medication directory; forum that allows service users to interact with one another; and guest health practitioners. Beth added: "Florid will play a key role in providing support, knowledge and space to share with others who understand what mental health is all about."

A play on the road

By Lara Edgar

An interactive play is helping primary school pupils understand road safety issues and the benefits of sustainable transport.

Box Clever Theatre Company's 'Car Story' had children at Colverston school falling about laughing.

It follows the story of Polly and her father as they travel to school, and covers the Green Cross Code; where and how to use roads safely; and alternatives to car travel.

One pupil said: "I thought it was a funny way of reminding people how to be safe on the road."

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet member for Neighbourhoods, said: "The fact that 47 out of 62 students who saw the play, had walked to school that day is excellent."

The Council's School Travel Plan team organised the free performances in

"A funny way of reminding people how to be safe on the road"

November, as a reward for schools that had completed annual reviews of their plans, which monitor how pupils and staff are getting to school.

The aim is to set out practical ways to reduce the number of car trips to schools for pupils, parents and staff. They promote healthy living and sustainable and safer

Have your say on car club bays

THE success of Hackney Car Club has led to proposals for 63 new bays to be created around the borough.

The club currently has over 2,000 members and has grown in popularity since its launch last year, with hundreds of people requesting bays in their area. Residents in 32 proposed locations for the new bays are being asked by the Council to give their views on the plans.

Car club members can benefit from a cheaper alternative to owning a car as there is no tax, insurance, parking permits, servicing or repairs to worry about. Members book a car by phone, or via the internet, and the vehicle can be picked up at designated bays across the borough. The scheme aims to relieve parking pressures, reduce reliance on privately-owned vehicles and provide residents who cannot afford to run a car with access to a vehicle.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Extra cash for Overground

PASSENGERS using London Overground stations between Dalston Kingsland and Hackney Wick are set to benefit from a Government funding boost.

Transport Secretary, Geoff Hoon, has announced an extra £54million to upgrade the Camden to Stratford part of the North London Line.

A new Overground train due to enter service in 2009

This will mean the existing two tracks can be increased to four in the Camden area after 2012. The funding is intended to alleviate bottlenecks and improve signalling and other infrastructure, in order to provide more capacity for passenger and freight trains.

TfL is already investing £326million in upgrading the London Overground infrastructure and part of this work will allow eight passenger trains to run per hour at peak times, and six per hour off-peak, between Stratford and Camden Road stations by 2011.

TfL London Rail Managing Director, Ian Brown, said: "We welcome this additional investment in London's transport infrastructure. It will bring greater capacity on a strategic North London route which must carry both passenger and freight services."

The London Overground between Richmond and Stratford recently returned to running a full service after two and a half months of engineering works across the network, part of a wider improvement plan to upgrade tracks, strengthen bridges and widen a tunnel.

What's green and red?

TWO of Hackney's bus routes saw more eco-friendly hybrid buses join the fleet this month.

The 276, which runs from Stoke Newington to Newham, and the 141, from Tottenham to London Bridge, were two of only five routes to benefit in the capital.

The new hybrid buses are cleaner and greener than diesel models. The combination of a conventional engine and an electric motor, uses less fuel and is better for air quality, as they emit fewer pollutants and reduce CO2 emissions by up to 40 per cent.

By the end of January next year, the number of hybrid buses in London will more than quadruple to 56, confirming the capital's position as the home of the largest fleet of hybrid buses in the UK. A further 300 hybrid buses are set to be in operation by 2011.

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY. TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT 1990. GENERAL PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT ORDER 1995

Notice of Approval of Direction under Article 4

NOTICE IS GIVEN that the Direction made by the London Borough of Hackney under article 4(1) of the General Permitted Development Order 1995 ("the Order"), on 7 July 2008, was approved by the Secretary of State on 27 November 2008.

The Direction applies to all development falling within Classes A, B, C, D, F and H of Part 1 of Schedule 2 of the Order and Classes A and C of Part 2 of Schedule 2 of the Order and within the Article 4 boundary of the St Mark's Conservation Area.

The effect of the Direction is that the permission granted by article 3 of the Order shall not apply to such development and such development shall not be carried out within that area unless planning permission is granted by the Council on an application made to them.

A copy of the Direction, the map defining the area covered by it and a database of properties to which the Direction applies may be viewed at: www.hackney.gov.uk/construction-areas then select St Mark's; and at: Planning Reception 263 Mare Street, London E8 3HT, between 8.30am and 5.30pm Monday to Friday.

This Direction comes into force on the date of this publication.

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY. TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT 1990GENERAL PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT ORDER 1995

Notice of Approval of Direction under Article 4

NOTICE IS GIVEN that the Direction made by the London Borough of Hackney under article 4(1) of the General Permitted Development Order 1995 ("the Order"), on 7 July 2008, was approved by the Secretary of State on 27 November 2008.

The Direction applies to all development falling within Classes A, B, C, D, F and H of Part 1 of Schedule 2 of the Order and Classes A and C of Part 2 of Schedule 2 of the Order and within the Article 4 boundary of the De Beauvoir Conservation Area.

The effect of the Direction is that the permission granted by Article 3 of the Order shall not apply to such development and such development shall not be carried out within that area unless planning permission is granted by the Council on an application made to them.

This Direction comes into force on the date of this publication.

SOUS chef Oceane Sokal fell in love with smoked haddock while visiting her grandparents in northern France as a child. She explains: "I've been treating myself to this dish less and less in recent years because I've read so many things about how overfished haddock is. "But now there is a company in Scotland confident it can produce excellent sustainable farmed haddock without fishmeal pellets. "I'm hoping this is going to be a dish I can enjoy one day maybe with some grandchildren of my own."

Smoked Haddock Chowder

Serves six as a starter

Preparation time
30 mins

Cooking time
30 mins

Ingredients

- 2 shallots, diced
- 2 sticks of celery, diced
- 2 carrots, peeled & diced
- 1 large potato, peeled & diced
- 1 bouquet garni (thyme, parsley & bay leaves)
- 6 pepper corns
- 6 small fillets of smoked haddock
- 400ml milk
- ¼ cup of flour
- Flat parsley, chopped
- 6 slices of pancetta
- 200ml white wine

Method

- Combine milk, bouquet garni in a saucepan. Bring the liquid to the boil, add your smoked haddock & poach.
- Take out the fillets, sieve & reserve the milk
- Sweat the shallots, carrots, celery & potato in butter until lightly browned. Deglaze pan with white wine. Bring to the boil, cover, & cook until veg is al dente
- Whisk flour into milk reserved earlier & add to vegetables. Simmer briefly, add fish & a handful of chopped parsley, cook for a further five minutes
- In a frying pan, crisp up your pancetta
- Serve soup in a deep plate with one fillet per person, topped with a crisp slice of pancetta

Top tip: A sharp knife is actually much safer than a blunt one, as it will go effortlessly where you need it to. A blunt knife requires you to apply more force and might end up slipping. Investing in a suitable stone for sharpening and learning how to use it can make chopping carrots and speedily chopping herbs safer and more fun.

Beat the bus blues

MOVES are afoot to reduce traffic hold-ups in a congestion hotspot. A new bus lane is being proposed along a stretch of Homerton Road and Marsh Hill that can suffer from westbound delays. The aim is to improve journey times and reliability in the area, which has four bus routes. The first section of the bus lane would run from the junction with Lee Conservancy Road and the bus stop near Kings Mead Way. This aim is to make it easier to pull into the bus stop after the pelican crossing. The second proposed section could run from the entrance to Kings Mead Way to Mabley Street. While the final section would start after the pelican crossing west of Mabley Street and run to Kenworthy Road junction.

The Council wants to hear residents' views on the proposals. The deadline to have your say is 22 December. Visit:

Slower and safer?

VIEWS are being sought on proposals to create a 20mph zone around Springfield

Community Primary School in N16.

The idea was suggested in Springfield's School Travel Plan (STP). These are drawn up to help pupils, staff, parents and carers travel safely to and from school sites. The 20 mph zone would cover the area between Stamford Hill, Clapton Common, Spring Hill, Lingwood Road, Leadale Road and Timberwharf Road. To have your say e-mail: selva.nimalan@hackney.gov.uk or call: 020 8356 8170.

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years.

The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

ADVICE SURGERY ON CRIME AND COMMUNITY SAFETY ISSUES

Cllr Nkafu, 5-6pm, 1st Monday each month, Hackney Town Hall, Mare St, E8.

To book an appointment call: 020 8356 3211

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note: some councillors do not hold surgeries during the school summer holidays. Call the number below to check.

NOISY NIGHTS

Khadine Jackson has a diploma in Acoustics & Noise Control Engineering

Khadine joined the Council's noise pollution team nine months ago. She says there's no such thing as a typical day: "During the week we deal with various complaints from people having problems with noise from their neighbours, and also with licensing and planning applications. At the weekend it gets very busy, especially during the summer. Sometimes we get called out because an illegal rave is taking place."

"We get back-up from the police when dealing with large events like that. If someone refuses to turn down their music to a reasonable level, we have the power to obtain a warrant and seize their stereo equipment." Asked how she deals with weekend night shifts, which each officer in the team does once every three weeks, Khadine said: "Weekend shifts are so busy there's no time to think about being tired."

Hearing you loud and clear

By Lara Edgar

THERE are eight staff in the Council's noise pollution team who deal with complaints about residential and commercial properties. Around 75 per cent of these are about noisy neighbours.

KEY FACT
Since April, there have been 235 warnings issued, 21 lots of equipment seized and two successful prosecutions

Over 6,000 complaints have been logged in Hackney over the past year, and 60 per cent of those were about noise at the weekends. Since April, 235 formal warnings have been issued, 21 lots of equipment seized, and two prosecutions secured at court.

Team manager, Joe Davies, said: "Seizing equipment or taking legal action is always the very last resort. Most of the time we persuade the person making the noise to be more considerate to their neighbours.

"We can all take simple steps to ensure we don't irritate our neighbours by not

Job Profile Binnie Crookes

Head of Leisure & Physical Activity, talks to Hackney Today about the Sports Development Coordinator role

What are the main responsibilities of the job?

The successful candidate will work with the community to develop ways to increase involvement in sport and physical activity. The important message to get across is that sport is beneficial in a number of ways, be it fun, fitness, friendship or health. A part of the job will also be to develop the Youth Games by working with young people in the borough.

What are the ideal qualities you are looking for in the candidate?

As a lot of the work will be with different groups, he or she will need to be an effective communicator, always open and approachable. The role requires a lot of planning and seeing projects through from start to finish, so the candidate should have a methodical approach to work. And of course a passion for sport and physical activity, and a desire to get people involved, is essential.

Why is it good to work in Hackney?

This role is a great opportunity to be part of a new team in a 2012 Olympic and Paralympic host borough, and to have an impact on people's lives. Increasing participation in sport will have positive effects on major social issues like community cohesion, crime, social inclusion, well-being and of course health.
